

2007 Graduate Essay Prize

Winners and runners-up are published in History Compass (www.history-compass.com), with winners also receiving $200/£100 of free Blackwell books.

The results were announced in February 2008 on the History Compass Blog (<http://historycompass.wordpress.com>).

Winners

Education for all: reassessing the historiography of education in colonial India
Catriona Ellis, University of Edinburgh (Asia Prize)

Falsified by History: Menzies, Asia and Post-Imperial Australia
Mads Clausen, University of Copenhagen (Australasia & Pacific Prize)

How far is the 'rhetoric of inclusion; reality of exclusion' argument applicable to the relationship of Afro-Latin Americans to the nation-state?
Helen Creighton, University College London (Caribbean & Latin America Prize)

To what extent have historians exploited monster literature for their own ends?
Anna Dunthorne, Swansea University (Europe Prize)

Scholars and the Sea: a historiography of the Indian Ocean
Sebastian Prange, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London (World Prize)

No Africa, Britain & Ireland, Middle & Near East or North America Prizes were awarded this year.

Runners-up

Reading the Rural Modern: Literacy and Morality in Republican China
Kate Merkel-Hess, University of California, Irvine (Asia)

The Jews in the Medieval Polish Economy: Some Thoughts on the Historiography of the Twentieth Century
Jolanta Komornicka, Boston University (Europe)